Fuair tú	“You got orders?”
Fuair	“Yes.”
Cá mhéad	“How many?”
Tá	“The Callaghans need three hundred vacuum cleaners, the McKeowns need two hundred and the Dowds need a hundred and fifty.
Sin	That’s six hundred and fifty all together.”
D’fhéach	Kelly looked at him with his two eyes wide open.
An bhfuil	“Are you joking?”
D’oscail	Colm opened the order book.
Léigh	“Read the orders for yourself.
Tá	They have been signed by the managing directors of the companies.
Dúirt	They said they would be sending you orders regularly.”
D’éirigh	Kelly rose and did a happy little dance around the desk.
Rud eile	“Another thing,” said Colm, “an export company is interesting in the appliance.
Measann	They think there will be a marked for it overseas.
Beidh	They’ll be in touch with you tomorrow.”
Shuigh	Kelly sat down again.
Conas	“How were you able to do this feat?”
Tá	“I have powerful friends.
Chuir	I made them understand that THE LEAP is the best vacuum cleaner in the world.”
Conas	“How can I repay you?” asked Kelly, with emotion in his voice.
